WORK OF CONGRESS

Vest's Amendment to the Tariff Bill.

PANAMA CANAL -A RESUMPTION.

The German Emperor's Visit to Queen Victoria.

He is Most Cordially Received at Osborne House.

Congressional Proceedings. By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 .- Davis offered a resolution calling on the Secretary of War for information on the subject of the accident last Friday to the lock of ARTISTS MATERIALS Sault St. Marie canal. He spoke of it as a most serious calamity to the commerce of the nation, costing, as he had been informed by telegraph, $500,000. He also mentioned, incidentally, the failure of the House to act on a bill passed by the Senate some months ago, providing for a second and larger bands played the German and English

> Cullom hoped the House would be induced to take up that measure and pass it. If not, it would be well enough for the Senate to take up the river and harbor bill at an earlier day than had been agreed upon, so as to have an appropriation secured for that very important work.

Cockrell inquired whether the business branch of Congress had paid any attention to the bill referred to.

Cullom said it had not. Cockrell thought it very remarkable that a body, organized with one man, for the purpose of transacting business, will not do it. Payne said he did not know how delicate one had to be in talking about the other house, but he was informed that the bill had been approved by the River and Harbor Committee of the House, but that for several months past that committee had not been able to get a hearing for it before the House. There was where the matter stood Whether it would be an act of humiliation for the Senate to ask the other House respectfully to act on that bill something ought to be done. Edmunds did not think it a proper thing to spend time discussing the engineers are pushing on their preparconduct of the other branch of Con- ations for an early resumption of the gress. All that the Senate had to do work. Their careful examination of Commercial Row, Rena, Nevada, with it just now was to consider the the plans has resulted very satisfacaccident to the canal lock, and he torily, everything being in as good if thought that, as the appropriations not better preservation and order than harbor bill of years ago were still in force, the Engineer Department had money enough at its disposal to remedy any defect. If so there is no benefit in the Senate making a very extraordinary display > of itself on the subject. Payne said the damage is being repaired as fast as 500 men could do it, and it would be completed to-morrow or next day. The main object of the appeal to Congress was that provision should be made for an additional lock. After further discussion the resolution was agreed to. The resolution offered on Saturday by Plum for the reinterment of the remains of Grant in the Arlington Na-Near the Town of Bishop. tional Cemetery was, at the suggestion of Plum, allowed to remain on the table, to be called up at some other time. The tariff bill was then taken up, the pending question being Vest's amendment to reduce the duty on cent. in the House bill, and 55 and 50 per cent. as proposed by the Finance

Two Hundred and Fifty Dele gates in Attendance.

Fourth Medical Congress. By Cable and Associated Press.]

Berlin, Aug 4 .- The Tenth International Medical Congress opened in this city to-day. Herr Von Zoetticher, escorted into the harbor by five British | Chief of the Imperial Home Office and entative of Chancellor Herr Von Maltzahn, Imperial Treasurer; Von Gossler, Prussian Minister of Ecclesi astical Affairs, Instruction and Medical Affairs; and Herr Herrfurth, Prussian Minister of the Interior, represented the German Government at the opening ceremony.

Prof. Virchow, President of the Congress, made the opening address. He expressed the Emperor's sympathy with the objects of the congress and said Germany would devote herself to science and humane efforts. Two thousand five hundred German and 2,500 foreign doctors, including 500 physicians from America, were present. Von Zoetticher made an address welcoming the delegates on behalf of the German States, and Dr. Von Gossler welcomed them on behalf of the Educational Department. The address welcoming the delegates to Berlin was made by the Burgomaster of the city.

Dr. Hamilton, Surgeon-General of United States Marine Hospital Service, who was secretary of the congress held last year at Washington, and others made speeches in response to the addresses of welcome.

Death of Mrs. Romero. Special to the GAZETTE.]

San Francisco, Aug. 4.-The announcement of the sudden death of Mrs. Romero, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Stewart, was a shock to the many friends of the family in this city. When Mrs. Romero passed through here sometime ago with her husband on their way to the Orient, where her husband was to represent his Government, she was in rather frail health. Arriving at her destination she found the climate of China did not agree with her. She wrote to the friends of her husband at Madrid, and through the influence of his family secured her husband's transfer to the Legation at St. Petersburg. She and her husband intended to give Senator and Mrs. Stewart a surprise and did not announce the fact that they would soon leave China for the United States. She wrote to her aunt, Mrs. Aldrich of this city, that she would stop a week here before going to Reno.

During the voyage from China she took a severe cold and was confined to her stateroom. On Friday morning after her arrival here she fell into her busband's arms saying, "I am dying," and before a physician could be called she expired. Her death is attributed to heart failure, brought about by incipient pneumonia.

A young reader, who is somewhat skeptical as to the wisdom of her choice of a husband, asks the Ladies' Home Journal: "What qualities should a girl look for most in a young man whom she regards in the light of a husband?" There are so many good "qualities" to look for, Miss Jennie, that it is almost easier to point out the undesirable ones which it is best he should not pos-

The most important point to remember when you choose a husband is that you are not choosing him for twenty-four hours, or a week, but for life. See what sympathies you have in common, wherein your tastes agree and disagree, and make up your mind as to whether you are willing to make your own inclinations subservient to his, so that parmony may be the result.

Think out whether he is honest in word and deed, for his position to other people is a slight index, but a sure one, as to what he will be to you.

Be sure that he tells the truth, for one who is systematically thoughtless as to what is and what is not exactly correct, will mane much unnappiness

If he is quick-tempered, study the way to shame him out of this, and learn the value, when he talks heedlessly, of keeping silent. See that your husband is a good business man; unless he is, he will not be able to make for you a proper home. See that he can give a good reason for any thing he does that you do not understand; as because two people love each other is no reason why they should not reasonable and reasoning beings. Look to him for consideration as well as for love. In the years to come the happiest marriage is that in which these two virtues amalgamate. Look in him for a soul that is above small meanness; despise the man who talks scandal and who tells disagreeable

Look for a man whose name you will be proud to bear, to whom you can carry all your doubts and perplexities, and with whom you will find sympathy and

A man is very much like a looking-glass, he gives you back smile for smile, frown for frown, and good thought for good thought. Sometimes the glass and the man may be a little wrong, and that's where the man has the advantage over the glass. Patience and perseverance will make him correct, but it is the quiet perseverance that comes from approbation and not from fault-finding.

Wesley Redhead of Des Moines. As soon as it became known that I had the medicine for free distribution there began a great run on it, which continued until its virtues declaring it the best medicine for the purpose they had even used. Those who got it shared it around with their neighbors so that sending it was productive of great good. We used some of it ourselve-and found it not only an excellen medicine for duarrhoea but for all garded as the best medicine know-here for the diseases it is recom-mended for. The Views of a Single-Tax Advecate Clearly Expressed.

The following communication on taxation has been sent the GAZETTE the 6th inst. by the Hon. Stephen B. Sturges, a capitalist from Brooklyn, N. Y., now vis-italist from Brooklyn, N. Y., now vis-the Opera House Dry Goods Store. iting Hon. J. M. Rhodes in Long Val-

EDITOR GAZETTE: The only source of facts and figures on the subject at the beginning of this communication—issued under U. S. authority, too—is the census. That shows: First, that the value of real estate is nearly four times that of personal property four times that of personal property. Second, therefore real estate should bear four-fifths of all taxation and personal property one-fifth-State and federal. Third, the same sources of information show that the total of State and federal taxes is nearly $723,-

State and federal taxes is nearly $723, 250,721; real property, $234.563,041; and personal property, $488,687,680.

If taxes should be levied according to the values of property, then personal property should pay one-fifth of the total State and Federal tax 8, or $166,247,666; and real estate four-fifths, or $556,903,035, making the total State and federal taxes $723,250, and the total State and taxes $723,250, as shown by the U.S. census. No federal tax is levied on real estate. Is this right or wise? Is there any sense in the dema-gogue's cry for greater taxation of per-sonal property?

The supplemental report of Professor R. T. Ely of John Hopkins Univer-sity, Baltimore, Md., to the Honorable General Assembly of Maryland, under the heading of "Origin of Our System of Taxation," says: "This system of taxation originated at a very early date, and has at one time or another been in vogue in nearly every civilized nation. It has, however, been abandoned in all countries except the United States. * * * It is characteristic of this system that the more you perfect it the worse you make it."
Eastern States—New York and Connecticut especially—are seeking to attract owners of capital or personal property to those States by little or no

Professor R. T. Ely, quoted above, says: "From the time of Turgot and Adam Smith to the present, political mists have not ceased to the people to be careful not to drive away capital by taxing it.

* * The result will be the farmer ropes, and enormous boulders by will find a poorer home market it. will find a poorer home markst for his produce, on account of diminished wealth in the State, while his lands will fall in value." The same writer referring to a message of the Hon. Abram S. Hewitt, ex-Mayor of New York, to the Board of Aldermen, says it radvocates exemption of personal property from al. taxation in order to build up the business of New York. It is plainly stated therein that all attempts to enforce the system of personal property taxation, thoroughly, in sonal property taxation, thoroughly, in New York, have been practically

Of the People on Saturday, Aug. 16, 1890,

For the purpose o'electing delegates to the hald state Convention, the Primary Elec-tions to be carried out in compliance with the laws of the State and the instructions of the committee.

The following test will be required of each and every voter at the said Primary elections:

"I am a citizen of this State and will support the nominees of the Republican party."

The following Resolutions were number and adopted:

The following Resolutions were musnimously adopted:
Resolved, That this committee restirens one S are and National Republican plate rm for 1888, including the declaration that "the Republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and alliver as money" and that it, "condamns all if ris to demonetize silver."
Resolved That the peraistent nealest of S creary Windom to merease the comage of silver to the maximum of four minion dollars per month, coupled with his attempt to influence Congressional legislation so as to perpetuate silver demonetization, is a snam-less violation of the silver plank of the National Republican platform, an attack on the rights and interests of the land, and an act of party perfidity that should call for his retirement from the councils of an administration which is pledged to help and not bloder the demonetization of silver.

Resolved, That the Republican party is in favor of free and unitimited coin-ge of both gold and silver; that is holds to this principle as a tenet of party faith and a rest of party allegiance; that it will permit of no abandonment or modification of this doctron; that let whosever will prove re-creant to the principl of himetallism it will remain steadfast thereo, and that it invites all voters in Nevada who favor the repeal of the in-quitous interlinested has of 1878 by which silver was remanded and of the and unitinisted coinage as the law of the Uniter S ates of America, to join in electing delegates to a Republican Biate Convention.

EUROPEAN NOBILITY.

Facts About the Holders of Rank and Wearers of Titles. Prince Bismarck, on his retirement, burg. The Czar has recently been asked by the chief personages of Russia to re-strict and define the nobility of his Em-pire. These facts call attention to the titles in Europe. In every European country, Switzerland alone excepted—even in republican France-there exists an aristocracy which is identified by titles, which titles for the most part, have been inherited by those who bear them.

These titles, moreover, are pretty much the same in all the countries, says the Youth's Companion. Those of Prince, Duke and Baron are found in England, Russia, Germany, Austria, France, Spain and Italy. That of Mar-quis exists in all except Russia, Ger-many and Austria. Counts are to be found in every continental country, while the title of Earl is only to be found in England, but corresponds nearly to that of Counts, for the wife of an Earl is a Countess.

But while the titles are quite similar, they sometimes indicate a different relative rank in one country from what they do in another. In England the title of Prince is the very highest, and is only worn by members of the royal family; but in Germany, Russia and France a Prince is inferior in rank to a Duke. The German Emperor intended to promote Bismarck when he proposed to raise him from a Prince to a Duke.

In some instances, too, the title of Count-which is a very common one, indeed, on the continent-is superior to that of Duke. For instance, the Count of Paris holds a higher rank than his son, the Duke of Orleans. The origin of these ranks and titles is, for the most part, to be found in the feudal system, and the nobilities of Europe generally date from the period when that system held sway. They resulted, in the beginning, from the possession of casties and lands, or from military leadership.

The titles of Baron, Count and Marquis were originally given to the owners of large estates. The title of Duke, however, came rather from military leadership, as its derivation-from the Latin dux, a leader-implies. So it came about that the owners of the estates took their titles from the estates themselves, or from the castle wherein they dwelt, or the village near it. They were the Barons or Counts of such and such a place; and here we per ceive the origin of the French prefix "de" and the German "von" to names which are still regarded as indicating gentle blood.

Those titles, in all countries but one, have been conferred by the sovereigns in recent centuries. But in Italy the titles of the nobles have been awarded to them by the different cities and towns. Each Italian city and large town has its "Liber D'oro," or Golden Book, in which the names of the persons on whom titles have been conferred

In some cases, the titles of noblemen's children are confined to the eldest son. In others all the sons of a nobleman have titles, derived from different estates belonging to him. The titles are sometimes the family name, like Prince Bismarck for instance, and sometimes are the names of estates or of cities, like the Count of Pierrefonds in one case, or the Count of Paris in the other. Ot all continental nobilities, that of Spain is perhaps the most exclusive, and the proudest of its descent and blood. The higher Spanish nobles are called "grandees," and comprise Dukes, Marquises, Counts and Barons. The lower nobility are called "hidalgos."

It is said in Spain that the grandees have blue blood and the hidalgos red. It is only the hidalgos who have the right to prefix "Don" to their names. The "Don corresponds with the "Sir"

The Spanish grandees used to be divided into three ranks by a certain curious privilege. The grandee of the highest rank had the right to put on his hat in the presence of the King be-fore the King spoke to him. He of the second rank could put on his hat after the King had spoken. But he of the third rank must wait till the King had spoken and he himself had replied, be-ore he could cover his head. The English peers—or rather the peers of the United Kingdom—who in-clude the six highest ranks of the nobility, are the only ones who, by reason of their hereditary rank and title, have the right to sit in the National Legislature and make laws. In the other monarchies nobles comprise indeed a large part of the upper houses, but this is usually by a selection of certain ones, rather than an inherited right.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

A Case Which Proves That Witnesses Sometimes Make Grievous Biunders. The following yarn was recently re-lated to a Maine attorney by Judge E. R.

Hoar, of Concord, says the Lewiston Journal. It indicates that there are cases of mistaken identity. A man was tried for highway robbery at East Cambridge, Mass., some forty years ago. He had no counsel, belonged to the class of habitual criminals, and as the evidence went in you would have said the case was hopcless. The person robbed identified him with absolute certainty. Other witnesses who had known him long and intimately testified to seeing him in the neighborhood of the place where the robbery was committed just before it occurred, and others who knew him equally well heard his voice at the time of the outcries, and saw him running away from the scene of the crime. As the Government ended the examination of each witness the court asked the prisoner in the dock if he wished to ask the witness any questions, to which he uniformly answered: "Yes, one question," and being told to ask it, it was each time:

"Are you sure it was me?"
To this each witness replied:
"Certainly; I know it was you."

When the Government's coop was

"Call him then." said the judge. "
"Is Captain Robbins in court?" said the prisoner, and there stepped forward the well-known master of the house of correction, with his record book of com-

"Do you know me?" asked the prison "I should think I did," replied Captain hoiders of rank and the wearers of Robbins.

"Will you look in your record and tell the court where I was on the 14th of last December?" (the day of the crime on trial).

Captain Robbins looked in his book. "You were in the house of correction at South Boston, serving out a year's sentence for larceny."

"That's all," said the prisoner.
The judge said to the jury that the defense, though not especially creditable, seemed to be conclusive, if they believed Captain Robbins.

FEMININE WISHES.

What Ten Women Desired Above All Other Things.

Are women mercenary? asks the New York Evening Sun. Are they ambitious? Are they shut into a narrower range of ambition and purposes than men? Read this testimony and discover, if you can. Ten women—some i mous, some clever, all women of thought and action—were dining on Saturday night. From the head of the table started the question: "If you could have one wish grantedbut one in all the world-what would you wish for?" "To be president of a railroad," came promptly from a woman at her "And I would wish for fame," said the low-voiced woman next.

"And I for plenty of money." "I should wish to know what proto-plasm is," said the little student beyond. "I think," came in tones of soft perplexity from the foot of the table, "I think if I were to wish for any thing it would be a wish to want something so much that I would be glad to work hard for it." And out of the necessary quiet that JOB followed this reply came the voice of the next speaker in positive tones: "One hundred thousand dollars."

"I should like to be able to write something so good that all the world would love me," said the sweet-faced

Her neighbor drew a long breath. "I should wish for health. Given that, I could have all these other things," she "Only one wish? Well, 'a house full of books and a garden of flowers,' which fine sentiment is cribbed from Andrew Lang," quoth her neighbor; and the last woman lifted her beautiful eyes and said in earnest tones: "I hope you won't feel shocked, but really I should only wish for total annihilation.

NOTES FOR GARDENERS.

PLANT the garden so that you can have a regular succession of vegetables. Plant small fruit with the same end in l'Ansies are hardy, and a few plants set out in a bed will thicken to a compact cluster and produce large flowers until late in the season.

Rose bushes thrive better by being well cut out and the old wood removed. For flowering plants wood mold makes an excellent fertilizer, but it should be used freely. Thouas not considered a sure remedy.

the free use of lime around cabbago plants will assist greatly in keeping the maggot away. Scattered liberally over onions, lime checks the ravages of the onion fly. Work between the rows of the strawberries, keep the weeds down and the soil loose. Plant raspberries early so as to give them a good start. If the canes are to make good growth give EXVE OPES, Etc., printed with design them manure in the hill. Those who desire to "bag" grapes that is to cover them with paper bags to prevent grape rot-should remember to do it as soon as the grapes are visible The mischief, if done at al!, is done in the earliest stages of grape growth.

Wood ashes are excellent on all kinds of vegetables. The stalks and leaves of potatoes abound largely in potash, as do also the leaves of beets. Though ashes contain no nitrogen, they supply not only potash but time and a proportion of phosphoric acid.

PRESENCE of weed seeds mingled with clover can usually be detected by handling samples with wet fingers, to which angular seeds will adhere more than the smooth clover seeds. And when it is desired to identify strangelooking seeds, the experiment stations are ready to do farmers that and similar

As the asparagus bed is a permanent thing, it is well to make a good and large one. When the asparagus is ready for use, do not cut the sprouts too long before cooking. as they easily lose their fine flavor when left in water or exposed to air. If, for any reason, it is desirable to keep a supply of cut bunches until the next day. bury them in soil until needed.

A Hard-Worked Division. A chief of one of the bureaus in the Interior Department has been calling on Congress this year for clerks-more clerks, says the Washington Post. He probably needs them too. Two Congressmen who are on his special committee called on him last week and he took them over his entire bureau, pointing out how far the work was behind and where the force needed strengthen-ing. Finally he laid his hand on a door-"This," said he "is the hardestworked, most crowded division in the bureau. We call it the treadmill"—and opened the door. Four clerks were reading newspapers, three had their feet cocked up on their desks, another group were listening to a funny story, and two were matching pennies over in a corner. when the Government's case was closed the judge asked the prisoner if he had any evidence to offer or wished to say any thing to the jury.

He had seemed to be very cold and unmoved during the trial, making no comment on his failure to disturb the confidence of any adverse witness, and to the judge's question replied:

"I should like to call one witness."

A Blue-Guammed Negro.

Oscar Hill, a farmer, had a fight with a negro in Clay County, Alabama, and was badly bitten. Hill had to have his arm amputated, and he developed symptoms of hydrophobia and died. The negro has blue gums and it is believed that the bite of such negroes always proves fatal. MISCELLANEOUS.

KISSES

A prominent physician calls the kiss "an elegant disseminator of disease." He says, "fever is spread by it, so are lung diseases." Out upon the gnarked and sapless vagabond! Evidently kisses are not for such as he, and the old for says the grapes are sour. Let him devote himself to making our women healthy and blooming that kisses may be kisses. This can surely be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pavorite Prescription, which is simply mapical in curing diseases peculiar to females. After taking it for a reasonable length of time there will be no more irregularity, backache, bearing-down sensations, nervous prostration, general debility and kindred aliments.
